

As a Principal of Perkins+Will, Joyce has been instrumental in creating an organizational model that effectively incorporates interior design as an integral part of all architectural projects. She has been responsible for building on this concept to broaden market focus, and, through her unflagging commitment to the team approach, has facilitated the company's growth from an interiors team which numbered eight in 2000 when she first came on board, to its current status of 26 members.

Joyce has been involved in over fourteen million square feet of full service projects and over four million square feet of tenant space planning and has broad and varied experience in the fast-tracking of projects, delivering all on time and on budget. This experience provides her with the ability to oversee all phases of design produced by our firm, as well as manage the required disciplines for their greatest effect.
